

Record reduces use of newsprint

STROUDSBURG — An immediate reduction of 10 per cent in the amount of newsprint used by The Pocono Record was announced today by Alan Gould Jr., publisher of the newspaper.

The reduction will involve both circulation and size of the daily paper. Fewer papers will be distributed to dealers and several features will be cut or used less regularly. A shortage of newsprint is blamed.

News dealers account for the sale of over 5,000 papers each day. The 10 per cent cut will affect all of them. A few in areas most distant from Stroudsburg will be dropped entirely.

The business page with daily stock tables will be dropped as a daily feature beginning Friday although the stock tables from the New York Exchange will be used occasionally as space permits. The weekend spread of both New York and American exchange listings will be discontinued.

Columnists such as Jean Adams, Jack O'Brian, Erma Bombeck, the Slim Gourmet, Jack Anderson, Jim Bishop, Jeffrey Hart, Roscoe Drummond and Sylvia Porter will be used less regularly as space permits. The same will apply to Becker's bridge column and Wishing Well.

"All these measures are temporary," said Gould. "We don't know how 'temporary' but we do know that a newsprint shortage has been turned into a crisis by strikes at mills that supply us and most recently by Canadian railroads that move the paper."

The Record publisher pointed out that production lost to strikes over the last six weeks can never be regained since the mills already had been at capacity and running three to five per cent below demand. "We anticipate a severe shortage at least for the balance of 1973," said Gould.

"Many predictions are that the shortage will become more acute," said the publisher. "Should that happen we are creating standby plans to ration advertising space, reduce the space for news and to further cut daily distribution."

"The cut in distribution is especially tough on our Circulation Department," said the publisher, "because they have been averaging over 16,000 copies per day — a new Record record. Now much of their work must be negated while we cope with ways to maintain quality during the emergency."

Fair's first day draws 9,000

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — A two-inch wide cucumber, grown in a vinegar bottle containing only a half-inch neck, was just one of the unusual attractions waiting for visitors as the 52nd annual West End Fair officially opened its gates to a crowd of 9,000 people Tuesday afternoon.

Reactions among fairgoers was good and many visitors said they were attending the fair for the very first time Tuesday.

(Fair stories, pictures pages 18, 19, 20)

Fresh-cut greens and their fragrance enticed some people who passed by the new Christmas tree exhibit while others along the midway seemed puzzled as to how sipping the juice from a lemon through a candy stick could be the least bit pleasing.

The new innovations caused notice among visitors, but it was the animals, good food from local stands and the ability to meet and talk with old friends in a reminiscent atmosphere, that most fairgoers said would be the real success of the 1973 fair.

Several people expressed dismay over the fair kitchen being closed, but added it would not detract from "the old fashioned, good clean country fair reputation," the West End Fair has always enjoyed.

"Every year we come to see the animals and it's so much nicer this year since the new extension has been added to the poultry building," said Mrs. Ronald Waltz of Blakeslee.

David Langhammer of New York, who was born and raised in Lehigh, said that Tuesday was the first time he was back at the fair in 20 years.

"It's good to be back and I'm glad it's a five-day event because I want to come again this week," he said. "But I really miss the fair kitchen — it's the only place I like to eat when I come here."

Veteran Fair Director Adam Mackes of Kunkletown, predicted this year's fair would be better than any before.

He said it was a shame, however, that the food stand would be closed. He explained that in its inception, the stand produced homemade sauerkraut from cabbage area farmers donated to the fair association.

"That was at least 20 years ago when the cows were still tied to the trees," said Mackes. "But my favorite part of the fair will be when I meet and visit with old friends this year like I used to do years ago."

Kathy Krell of Tamaqua said she expected more to be open early Tuesday afternoon, but she said she was impressed with the homey atmosphere at the fairgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Lakey of Bath, who visited the fairgrounds for the first time Tuesday, said they liked the good old-fashioned fair aspects at the West End Fair as compared to the other commercialized fairs that are held in the area.

Spray adhesives banned

WASHINGTON — The government Tuesday banned nine additional hobby-type spray adhesive products as an "imminent hazard" because of possible chromosome damage and resulting birth defects. The latest additions to the list were 3-M's Sears Multi-Purpose Spray Adhesive, Scotch Brand Multi-purpose Spray adhesive, Scotch-Grip Brand Floral Adhesive 77, 3-M Brand Shipping Mate Palletizing Adhesive, E-M Brand Spray Trim, Tuff-Bond Spray-Adhesive, Bear Brand Spray Trim Adhesive, Tri Chem Spray Mist adhesive and Borden's Marshall's Photo-Mount Spray adhesive. Last week, the commission banned 3-M's Adhesive 77, Foil Art Spray Adhesive and Scotch Brand Spray-Ment and Borden's Krylon Spray Adhesive.

Rebel line breaks in Cambodia

PHNOM PENH — Cambodian troops advancing behind two dozen armored personnel carriers broke through a rebel roadblock on Highway 4 outside Phnom Penh Tuesday, but the insurgents kept the road closed with another blockade further south. Both highways 4 and 5 have been cut since last Saturday. Highway 4 leads to Phnom Penh's only deepwater port at Kompong Som, and Highway 5 runs between the capital and the country's principal rice-producing province of Battambang.

Sirica rules on tapes today

WASHINGTON — Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica will issue his ruling today on whether President Nixon must surrender his tape recordings of conversations on Watergate to Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, his office said Tuesday. Sirica's decision is certain to be appealed by the losing side and the case is likely to be appealed to the Supreme Court shortly after it returns from its summer recess in October.

DER wants growth regulated

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Attorneys from the department of Environmental Resources' enforcement arm implied Tuesday land development will have to stop in Monroe County until its impact on the Pocono environment can be regulated.

The strike force attorneys, however, offered no guidelines for such regulation and when pressed by local officials, admitted such guidelines are yet to be formulated.

Hershel Richman, chief of the strike force's eastern region, set the tone for the two hour meeting with Monroe County Commissioners and planning commission members saying there had "been an apparent lack of communication" between DER and local officials.

He said the meeting would hopefully kick-off a "new era of better communication."

Assistant Attorney General Ralph Kates presented DER's position, stating development in the Poconos can no longer be based on "hardware considerations", but would have to include environmental factors.

The DER spokesmen said environmental considerations should be embodied in a comprehensive land use plan, against which local planners can measure applications for subdivision approval.

Monroe County doesn't have such a plan, but is in the process of contract negotiations with Richard S. Cowan Associates of Quakertown for a $35,000 study.

According to Kates, the local officials are "trustees of the natural resources of the Commonwealth" by virtue of a state constitutional amendment, and are therefore responsible for monitoring development.

He said implementation of sewerage, water systems and subdivisions will have to first meet the test of environmental protection contained in a comprehensive plan.

Richman said Monroe County is the first area targeted by the strike force because "the Pocono area is sensitive and we thought it ought to be the first area we ought to work with to protect it."

The DER will later be moving into Pike and Wayne Counties.

While carefully avoiding directives, or stating openly what recourse the department has if local officials fail to meet DER requirements, Richman and Kates both implied no more subdivisions can be approved by local officials.

"Our reading of the law is that there cannot be any approval of subdivisions until there is a comprehensive plan," Richman said at one point.

Municipal and county planners approve development of about 240 subdivisions in Monroe County every year.

And following their session with the DER, local officials said they would keep on approving the plans until the department produced more concrete guidelines.

"My reaction after attending the meeting this morning was that we will pursue the course we have been," said C. Marshall Reese, planning commission chairman.

No one, including the DER, seemed to know exactly what constitutes "environmental concerns" and until official guidelines stipulate those concerns, local officials remain confused.

"We haven't gotten a directive from them showing any legal authority for what they said and now we're in limbo on a comprehensive plan and sewerage facilities plans," said Douglas Williams, planning administrator.

Commissioner William Quinn said he was uncertain about the meaning of the DER's visit.

Officials seem to think the DER's appearance is significant and will have a long range impact on development in Monroe County, but until the department spells out what it wants, no local action is planned.

"I feel this is a determined effort by DER to carefully control development and they have selected Monroe County as a beginning point," Reese said.

The next step will be a meeting among the DER attorneys and solicitors for local planning commissions to thrash out the serious legal questions involved in the regulation of development in the Poconos.

Bomb scare spreads

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's letter bomb scare spread to Paris Tuesday where an explosive in an envelope was delivered to the British embassy but was discovered before it exploded. It was the second bomb found in a British embassy in two days, the Foreign Office said.

The letter had been mailed somewhere in England, police said. The bomb, in a white envelope six-by-four inches, was addressed to a member of the embassy staff in "irregular handwriting" similar to that used on other letter bombs discovered in London and attributed to an Irish Republican Army terror campaign, the spokesman said. The letter was handed over to French police who confirmed it contained a bomb.

The House of Commons was sealed off Tuesday to investigate a bomb report. The House was not in session and the parliament buildings were not evacuated.

On Monday, a letter bomb exploded at the British embassy in Washington, severely injuring the personal aide to the military attaché.

In England, the biggest bomb alert since World War II was in effect Tuesday as Britons returned to work from a three-day weekend. No bombs were found in the stacks of unopened mail but there were hundreds of calls to police asking that packages be inspected.

360 killed, thousands homeless

Massive quake rips across Mexico

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — A massive earthquake rumbled across 200 miles of Central Mexico Tuesday from Mexico City to the Gulf of Mexico. Authorities said two towns were partially destroyed and the Red Cross said more than 360 persons were killed.

The quake, centered in subterranean faultlines deep under Mexico's mountainous central spine, struck at 3:52 a.m. (5:52 a.m. EDT), registering 7 on the Richter scale—more powerful than the Dec. 23, 1972 quake in Managua, Nicaragua which killed 5,000 persons.

It struck an area of Mexico still reeling from Hurricane Brenda, which killed five persons and left hundreds of thousands homeless a week earlier.

In Orizaba, a city of 50,000 at the epicenter of the quake 150 miles east-southeast of Mexico City, a 12-story apartment building collapsed. The Red Cross said more than 100 persons asleep inside were killed instantly.

Red Cross officials estimated 100 persons died in Quecholac in Puebla state; 80 in Ciudad Cerdan, 178 in Orizaba, two in Puebla and two in Cordoba in Veracruz state.

The quake also rocked the resort area of Cuernavaca in Morelos state south of Mexico City, and the federal district which includes the capital. In Mexico City, buildings swayed and people ran out of hotels and into the streets in pajamas and gowns.

Orizaba was left without electricity or running water. Dazed survivors wandered the littered streets looking for relatives or possessions.

"It was horrible," said secretary Marina Garcia, 18. "It was the worst thing I have ever seen. It sounded like the whole world was shaking."

"I was lucky," said Magdalena Delgado, 63. "The whole house collapsed but that ceiling beam over there fell at an angle over my bed. I crawled out the window. My sister up the street is dead. Three of my cousins are in the hospital."

Miguel Angel Cisneros, 37, said he survived because he spent last night at his mother's house instead of in his apartment.

"As soon as the shaking stopped, I dressed and went over to the apartment house," he said. "It had collapsed. My sister Maria was killed in there."

UPI Reporter Timothy Berry reported from Orizaba that the apartment building appeared split in two. Half of it collapsed in a heap of concrete slabs and chunks of yellow wall. One outside wall remained partially standing, with parts of rooms exposed.

A passerby said he ran to the wrecked building after the quake hit. "I couldn't stand it," he said. "There were people trapped inside screaming. There was nothing I could do. I had to get away."

Concrete falls on subway trapping N. Y. commuters

NEW YORK (UPI) — A huge slab of concrete crashed Tuesday from the roof of New York's oldest subway tunnel onto the front car of a crowded subway train deep below Grand Central Station, trapping hundreds of homeward-bound commuters in a stifling hot, smoke filled tunnel.

One elderly man who had been standing against a door that was smashed inward died of head injuries and 22 others were injured in the rush-hour accident on New York's hottest day of the year.

While those in the damaged train waited about 90 minutes in 100-degree heat to be rescued, thousands of other commuters had to be evacuated from the subway station as thick acid smoke billowed from the tunnel. The subway, the Flushing line to Long Island, was knocked out of commission.

The hot smoke, created when the falling concrete struck the power carrying third rail of the subway and caused a minor electric fire, even reached the street in the area near the United Nations and disrupted street traffic.

"My God, I thought we'd all die. All of a sudden the whole wall of the car caved in," said Ellis Mayher, Flushing, N.Y., a passenger in the car hit by the 12-by-25 foot concrete slab.

"It was so unbearably hot," she said. "You could hardly breathe. You could hardly see. It was just unbearable. There was a lot of screaming at first, a lot of crying, a lot of fainting."

"The whole wall came in. It smashed the door open. One old man standing right against the door was hurt very badly. A number of other women were hit by flying glass."

"It was the worst oven I'd ever been in," said Mike Nator of New York, another front-car passenger.

Dr. William J. Ronan, chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority (MTA), said the accident apparently was caused by a 12-by-25-foot hunk of concrete ceiling which fell, smashing into the front left side of the first car.

"We don't know why the ceiling fell," Ronan said.

Gunman gives up, hostages released

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A "psychopathic" gunman surrendered Tuesday night and released four hostages he had held for five days in a bank vault turned into a "torture chamber." No one was hurt.

Shouting, "I surrender, I surrender!" the gunman threw his submachine gun up through a hole in the roof after police flooded the vault with teargas, ending a drama which lasted more than 131 hours.

The gunman, identified as Jan-Erik Olsson, 32, was led from the bank in handcuffs. A friend of Olsson's, 23-year-old Clark Olofsson, also was taken to a hospital in handcuffs. Doctors said both men were in "amazingly good condition" despite the gas.

The hostages—Birgitta Lindblad, 31, Kristin Enmark, 25, Elisabeth Oldgren, 23, and Sven Saefstrom, 25—were taken to separate hospitals. Officials said they appeared in good condition after their ordeal which began during a bank robbery on Thursday.

Stockholm Police Chief Kurt Lindroth said police forced gas into the vault from the top at 9:02 p.m. (4:02 p.m. EDT). At the same time, they used a giant drill press to punch a hole in the double steel doors, locked on both sides.

By the time police entered the chamber, the hostages had managed to shove aside two filing cabinets used as barricades by Olsson and his friend, police said.

The agonizing standoff between the gunman and surrounding officers, which became a political issue in Sweden, began at 10:16 a.m. last Thursday as a bank robbery when Olsson burst into the Kreditbanken in downtown Stockholm waving a submachine gun.

He shot one policeman and took eight clerks hostages. Later, he reduced the number of hostages to four and Friday night took refuge in the vault. He demanded $750,000 ransom

Ambassador leaving Cambodia

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon announced Tuesday that Emory C. Swank, the U.S. ambassador who has directed the American war effort in Cambodia for the last three years, is leaving his post.

Although the White House described Swank's departure from Phnom Penh as a "routine change," diplomatic observers saw it as a possible prelude to a return to Cambodia of ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Swank, 51, a highly regarded career foreign service officer, took over the Cambodia post when the United States resumed relations with the Khmer republic following Sihanouk's ouster in 1970.

Sihanouk, now living in exile in Peking, has no known personal animosity toward Swank. But the ambassador is the symbol of U.S. support for the Lon Nol regime which ousted Sihanouk and endorsed the U.S. bombing policy against forces in Cambodia now supporting the prince.

Plastic bottles dangerous

CHICAGO (UPI) — Plastic bottles being developed and test marketed for soft drinks could be a hazard, a University of Michigan researcher said Tuesday.

Gwendolyn L. Ball and an associate in the university's Department of Environmental and Industrial Health analyzed the gasses produced by the burning of a number of plastics.

The gas emitted by the plastic used in the new soft drink bottles is potentially dangerous, Miss Ball told a news conference at the American Chemical Society convention.

More banks up rates

NEW YORK (UPI) — Commercial banks across the country Tuesday joined the parade of commercial banks installing a quarter point boost in the prime interest rate.

Chase Manhattan Bank of New York inaugurated the latest round Monday.

Among the institutions swinging into line with a posted rate of 9-3/4 per cent were the Bank of America, the country's largest; Chemical Bank, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. and Marine Midland Bank, of New York; the Mellon Bank and the Pittsburgh National Bank, of St. Louis; the Commerce Bank of Kansas City and three Michigan banks, Bank of the Commonwealth, the National Bank of Detroit and the Detroit Bank and Trust.

While most banks installed the new rate without comment, Bank of California Chairman Charles de Bretteville made the observation that the 15 rate increases since the first of the year "have not yet deterred either corporate or consumer loan demand, except in home construction."

Other officials described Olsson as "a completely cold and emotionless psychopath."

What's happening down there makes me want to throw up," another policeman said.

Other officials described Olsson as "a completely cold and emotionless psychopath."

A United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU) official said the union met with the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Co. in Toronto to "review positions."

The talks were the first sign of hope since negotiations broke down in early June and subsequent conciliation procedures fell through. Abitibi's 6,000 Ontario employees can legally strike by Friday, but the company has already closed down two of its seven Ontario plants because of the national rail strike.

"We're hopeful we can get a settlement by the end of the week," said one union spokesman. We think it could set a pattern for all newspaper producers in eastern Canada. You always have to have a big producer to set a pattern."

An Abitibi spokesman refused comment on the resumed talks. The UPIU spokesman said about 10,000 paper workers were currently out of work because of lay-offs or strikes.

Cyclamates may return

NEW YORK (UPI) — Abbott Laboratories, the inventors of cyclamates that were banned three years ago because they were found to cause cancer in rats, confirmed Tuesday it will try to put the artificial sweetener back on the market.

A spokesman for the drug company said new experiments carried out in several parts of the world, including a study by the National Cancer Institute, indicated that cyclamates were safe to use and caused no adverse effects, even when given to rats in massive doses.

Meanwhile, the Food and Drug Administration, has found a possible link between saccharin, which has generally replaced cyclamates, and cancer.

A THREE CREDIT COURSE IN THE INSTITUTE OF LEADERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT

ACCOUNTING ANALYSIS FOR MANAGEMENT DECISIONS

... Professor T. Lawrence Ray

This elementary presentation will detail the uses of accounting principles and techniques as aids in properly managing and controlling enterprises in the public and private sectors. The case method will be utilized to develop such subjects as bookkeeping, budgeting, cost control, performance standards and evaluations, and the automation of accounting systems. Basic tax principles as they affect individuals and corporations will also be stressed. The course is designed for those who have had little or no formal training, or who have forgotten what training they have had, and whose current or future managerial or administrative position calls for a broad-based understanding of the financial affairs of the business enterprise. This course or its equivalent is the essential prerequisite for anyone seriously interested in the Science of Management.

Cars could cost $106 more

Automakers want higher prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Big Four auto manufacturers asked the Cost of Living Council Tuesday to approve retail price increases of $55 to $106 for 1974 model cars to cover the cost of government-required safety and antipollution devices.

Officials of General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors told a council hearing the price boosts would only cover their added costs and would not include a profit.

Peter J. Petkas, a lawyer for the Ralph Nader-supported Corporate Accountability Research Group, said the cost of new devices was much lower than the price increases sought, and that "any price increase at this time is unwarranted."

Petkas said antipollution devices should not be part of any price increase since they were "not mandated by federal law."

And James W. McLane, the council's deputy director, said the government would take a hard look at "the impact of such increase on the country's inflationary psychology."

The hearing was held under a Phase IV economic controls regulation requiring the largest U.S. corporations to give the government 30 days in which to allow or reject any proposed price increase.

Ford seeks the biggest increase, $106, for a variety of new required devices, including one that locks the ignition until front seat passengers buckle their safety belts.

GM's average increase totals $102 on its 1974 models; Chrysler, $71, and American, $55 per car.

Ford comptroller Kenneth C. Merrill, acknowledging public skepticism of the need for a price boost in view of the auto industry's soaring profits in recent months, said Ford's $106 increase would recover "only the cost of safety devices," and was justified because of "the price restraint we have exercised so far."

The council will hold another hearing later this week on proposed steel industry price hikes.

In Detroit, the United Auto Workers (UAW) Tuesday rejected an offer from Chrysler Corp. to give its 127,500 U.S. and Canadian workers a new three-year contract that would have provided a continuation of the present 3 per cent annual wage increase. The offer did not answer the union's demands for an end to compulsory overtime, improved health and safety conditions.

U.S. economy grows slower

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Commerce Department issued a report on leading economic indicators Tuesday showing the nation's economic expansion slowed slightly in July.

The index, made up of eight indicators and regarded as an economic early warning system, showed a 1.1 per cent overall rise in July compared to an average of more than 1.5 per cent in the first three months of the year.

It stood at 167.5 for July, based on a 1967 level of 100. But four indicator statistics, usually included in the index, were not available.

On the growth side, industrial material prices, unemployment insurance claims, stock prices and the average work week went up.

The gain in industrial materials prices, rising from a June index level of 170.1 to 178.1 for July, contributed most to the gain in the indicators index.

Plans for investment in construction and new plants and equipment and orders for durable goods, such as cars and appliances, were dampened by the rise in interest rates.

The main downward pressure in the index was in building permits, dropping from an index of 174.9 to 156.5.

The indicator signaling growth included a drop in the initial claims for unemployment insurance, from 238,000 to 221,000. The average work week increased from 40.6 hours in June to 40.9 hours in July and stock prices rose from an index

Residents support new measure

Milford truck law poses problems

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

MILFORD — Although Milford residents view the borough's new truck parking ordinance with triumphant glee, Milford police see the measure as an enforcement problem.

Truckers, on the other hand, regard the ordinance as one more stumbling block on a route strewn with problems. Milford's borough council Monday passed its second ordinance aimed at truck traffic in the town. It imposes a 15-minute limit on parking time for vehicles weighing more than three-quarters of a ton. The first measure, enacted June 18, levies fines for excessive noise in the borough. It has yet to be tested. According to Mayor Donald Howe, overseer of the borough police force, enforcement of the parking law will require the addition of officers to the force.

"We know there's going to be a problem," Howe said. "We'll do the best we can." Howe anticipates the addition of one fulltime or two part-time policemen. He said one person could be hired just to enforce the new laws.

Enforcement of the ordinances, he said, will be a 24-hour job. At present, the borough force of one fulltime and two part-time patrolmen provides protection only 80 or 90 hours a week, Howe said.

More personnel will be needed to take up the remaining time slots.

Ticketing trucks parked overtime won't be a pleasant task, Howe warned. Finding the license plate on a tractor-trailer and scraping it free of dirt, or ice and snow will take time and a lot of bending, Howe explained.

For a trucker, the ordinances may simply be a nuisance, according to representatives of the Pennsylvania Motor Truckers' Assn. (PMTA).

Fines for parking violations will come from a drivers' pocket; fines for noise violations are levied on a vehicle's owner — in most cases, a trucking company.

Bill Yocum of PMTA said he doesn't foresee widespread violation of the parking ordinance. PMTA, in fact, plans to inform all its members of the measure.

"This is commonplace in the industry," he said. "There's never been a time when we've not been faced by some laws."

Yocum, when told of the noise ordinance, doubted whether a test of the law would stand up in court.

George Wolf, representing the management of the trucking industry for PMTA, spoke of justification for the ordinances, but said they wouldn't get the trucks off Rte. 209 or out of Milford.

"I don't understand why truckers park in the borough," Wolf said. "And there's no reason — especially in the summer — for them not to shut their engines off."

Milford residents' major complaint is that trucks parked by the Milford Diner on Broad Street leave their engines idling creating an incessant noise at night.

Antique show, sale scheduled

TUNKHANNOCK — The 14th annual Haymarket Antiques and Art Show and Sale, sponsored by the Harmony Chapter 58, Order of Eastern Star, will be held Saturday in Evans Falls, located midway between Dallas and Tunkhannock.

The show, which will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., will be held in a large field near Rtes. 29 and 309.

Over 40 dealers from Florida, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania are expected to participate in the show.

The dealers will sell their wares from open automobiles and station wagons which will be arranged area style in the field at the foot of a mountain.

A comprehensive selection of antique furniture, glassware, china, copper, brass, jewelry and prints will be available.

The art show will feature paintings by Robert Hefelfinger, Scranton, Mrs. Elizabeth Siebert, Bath, and Mrs. C.E. Smith, Bethlehem. The paintings which will be for sale will be displayed on the outside of a rustic old barn located at the show site.

Dog owners warned

STROUDSBURG — Unlicensed dogs could cost owners or keepers from $10 to $300 fine and costs for violating a state law requiring tags on all dogs six months or older.

The license was required as of Jan. 15, 1973 and Monroe County Dog Enforcement Officer Cecil Clink of Tunkhannock said an area canvass of dog owners will be made in September to insure compliance.

The licenses are available at the office of the Monroe County Treasurer in the Courthouse.

Driver injured in crash

MARSHALLS CREEK — A Middle Smithfield Township man is in serious condition in Bethlehem's St. Luke's Hospital with a skull fracture following an early morning one car mishap.

Harold R. Knight, 27, of Sweetwater Farm, lost control of his auto on Rte. 402 near the intersection of Rte. 209, went down an embankment, across a creek and smashed into a wall.

The impact left a four by six-foot hole in the wall of a store owned by Marshalls Creek Fire Chief Richard MacDonough, according to Tpr. Elwood Willis from the state police at Stroudsburg.

Willis said MacDonough transported Knight to the General Hospital of Monroe County where he was later transferred to the Bethlehem hospital.

The accident occurred about 5:30 a.m.

Political 'dirty tricks' weren't only factor in Muskie loss

By DONALD R. LARRABEE
Ottaway News Service
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — In the second phase of the Watergate hearings next month, the Ervin Committee will look into the "dirty tricks department" of the 1972 campaign.

The public will hear in depth about political espionage and surveillance, phony letters, odd telephone calls calculated to annoy the listener, false leaks to reporters and other peculiarities. Some of this activity is normal and comes under the heading of pranksmanship. Some of it was unlawful.

Some of the victims of campaign dirty tricks will testify, including the Democratic nominee George McGovern, Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington. More than 200 persons have been interviewed about the campaign finance and sabotage phases of the 1972 election in preparation for the new hearings.

Bingo is legal, or it isn't

There is a sort of comedy-of-errors aspect to that bingo game incident and its consequences at Fernwood the other night. Not to those charged with breaking state gambling laws, we assume, but certainly to the casual observer.

We suspect, though, that the legal action was taken primarily because of the circumstances and the attendant publicity. We doubt it really had anything to do with the desire to enforce the anti-bingo law.

Every week, there are bingo games operating here and there in the area. They progress uninterrupted by anything so disruptive as a police raid.

It's not that the anti-bingo statute is an unenforceable one; it's simply that enforcement officials as well as the general public just don't see anything wrong with a friendly game of bingo at the local church or volunteer fire company.

Does that mean the bingo law is a bad law? Perhaps; for sure it means it is an unpopular and ignored one, for the most part. There have been persistent efforts in the Assembly to either repeal or rewrite the law, allowing some regulated bingo games to be held legally.

We think this incident last week indicates more consideration ought to be given to such an effort. And, until that is done, law enforcement officials ought to stop winking at small-time bingo games and start enforcing the law.

Either bingo is illegal or it is not; until some legislation specifies conditions under which they can be held, then all ought to be barred. Anything less can only be detrimental to justice.

One little slip

Those who fear for the future of mankind in a world where human existence rests with a man who has his finger on a button have been criticized for their alarmism and generally scorned as bad-dreamers.

Maybe their fear that a man's finger can slip and plunge the world into all-out nuclear war isn't so foolish after all. We see that the Pentagon has found out how it happened that our B52s bombed the life out of a friendly Cambodian village: a bomber crewman's failure to flip a switch did it.

As simple as that. The switch had to be activated to turn on the super-sophisticated electronic gear that was to have guided the big bomber on to its intended target. Since that didn't happen, the bomber just dropped its deadly load on the nearest village, which happened to be filled with civilians and no enemy soldiers.

Perhaps we need a few more "people checks" before any one switch or button or elaborate, unfeeling machine can be trusted to not start an all-out bombardment. We're starting to feel a little queasy ourselves about how itchy that finger on The Button might be right now.

Light side

With Gene Brown

From a short drink?

A police officer pulled a small compact car over after watching it weave and bounce all over the road for a mile or so.

"Are you drunk?" demanded the officer.

"Of course not," said the man, "I've got the hiccups."

Get it done!

Appointing a committee is sometimes another version of sweeping it under the rug.

It is no secret by now that Senator Muskie, during the two years in which he was rated the Democrat's front-runner, had more than his share of such shenanigans. There are some among his supporters who feel that the widespread political sabotage directed against him was a factor in knocking the Maine man out of the race.

But the senator himself has consistently refused to blame dirty tricks for his demise. And it is doubtful that the Ervin Committee will try to make such a case, either for Muskie against the Democratic field or in the context of the bizarre campaign of 1972 as it came to pass.

Muskie, when he looks back on his presidential bid, concedes he was victimized by a "fake letter" and that he probably was injured in New Hampshire by the false charge in that letter that he made slurs on citizens of French - Canadian ancestry, referring to them as "Canucks."

Muskie has no doubt that the letter, printed in the Manchester Union Leader just prior to the primary, was "critically important" in that city, bringing him below the 50 per cent figure. His denunciation of the newspaper's publisher in the snow outside the Union Leader building, whether or not accompanied by tears, is widely regarded as a wounding event.

But the Senator from Maine is the first to admit that he had plenty of time to come back, if it was in the cards. In a post-mortem with this writer and with author Teddy White ("The Making of the President — 1972"), Muskie stresses his belief that the Democratic Party last year wanted a "protest" candidate and concedes that such a role is not in his makeup.

Reporters covering Muskie on the early New Hampshire trail sensed that the Maine Senator was in trouble, long before the "crying" episode. Teddy White says they were bothered by his "tendency to emotional outburst" in by his "lawyer-like ponderous way of dealing with all issues - and even the most trivial decisions." Even with Muskie leading the polls, White says journalists had a problem making Muskie "interesting."

Newsman were put off by the Senator's refusal to give them a quick judgment and a headline-catching quote.

Unanswered Watergate questions

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is asking a lot of the American people to turn from their questioning and anxiety about Watergate just because he has reaffirmed that he himself had no foreknowledge of the break-ins nor any part in the White House cover-up.

I happen to be one who believes that the President did not have such foreknowledge and was not a participant in the cover-up. But I still believe that the American people are entitled to get a fuller and more forthright explanation on the following:

Why did men Nixon deemed honorable and trustworthy become involved in the Watergate offenses?

What was his relationship to his staff made the offenses possible?

How could most of the circumstances remain concealed from the President when so much was known by nearly everyone else? Nixon's San Clemente press conference was a good beginning — so good that even the New York Times praised the President for his "self-confidence and conciliatory good humor."

Candid reply

Nixon couldn't have been more candid and direct than when he answered the question about how much personal blame he accepted for creating the climate in the White House for the Watergate abuses. His answer: "I accept it all."

But there are further matters which need clarification.

I am not suggesting presidential complicity. There is no evidence, other than John Dean's "impression," that there was any complicity. But the very absence of presidential complicity makes the Watergate crimes all the more difficult to understand, and makes the public's wish to hear more fully from Mr. Nixon eminently reasonable.

Nixon himself has rightly said that Watergate involves "a whole series of acts that either represent or appear to represent abuse of power." The President's reaffirmation that he was not involved in them does not explain how they came about. The trial and conviction of the five employees of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President did not explain how the break-in and other abuses came about.

How can we perceive what political reforms are needed to avert future Watergates unless the President volunteers to help the nation understand what brought them about in the first place?

Here are some of the questions to which I believe most Americans would like to get answers directly from the President himself:

Why weren't the President's suspicions aroused much earlier than they appeared to be when the first signs that something was going dreadfully wrong began to appear?

With all the powers and resources of the Presidency available to him, what explanation can Nixon give to account for the fact that the press could uncover so much of the Watergate offenses when the government was unable to do so?

Nixon himself said that immediately after the Watergate break-in one of his foremost considerations was to "get the facts out first." Why was he unable to do so?

When the President learned that the White House "plumbers" had illegally broken into Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office — thus exceeding his instructions — why didn't Nixon order these lawbreakers dismissed?

What was the President's reaction and response, if any, when he learned that Atty. John Mitchell continued to retain the services of G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt after they had three times proposed the burglary and bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters?

What was there in the climate of the White House, and in the relationship between the President and his most trusted associates, that could persuade John Mitchell that he was faithfully serving the President by deciding to withhold from Nixon everything he knew lest it adversely affect the election?

These offenses are not things which the nation committed. They are acts which the President's own people committed. When, as the Harris poll shows, some 66 per cent of the public has an adverse reaction to Nixon's Watergate speech, this means that many who wish the President well feel they need and deserve to hear from him more frankly and more forthrightly.

Lester Coleman, M.D.

These are your questions

Our daughter is 16 and has not yet begun to menstruate.

How do you feel about this idea?

Dear Mrs. M.:

No, there is no value to chiropractic manipulation to bring on the menstrual cycle. Menstruation is probably one of the most

More and more traffic

In retrospect

By Bert Walter

A decade old dream will be realized for Monroe County this October.

Interstate 80 is to be completed and open to traffic through New Jersey from the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge to the George Washington Bridge.

Completion of the interstate will cut the travel time to and from greater metropolitan New York and make Monroe County even more accessible to the thousands of tourists. Or will it?

Completion of Interstate 80, although so long awaited by Monroe County and Pennsylvania, will cause problems.

The immediate problem is traffic congestion.

Throughout the summer there has been massive congestion on Interstate 80 in Monroe County — from Blakeslee to the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge. There have also been traffic jams and more accidents.

Motorists each Sunday throughout the summer witnessed bumper-to-bumper traffic from Blakeslee to the toll bridge. Along many sections of the highway through Monroe it has been stop, go, slow down, go again.

New Jersey has always been a bottleneck to thousands of cars which travel along Interstate 80 and funnel through the toll bridge onto the narrow two lane Route 46. Completion of the interstate will most certainly avoid this bottleneck, but it will not, however, thin out the traffic.

The summer of 1973 has been an important lesson for Monroe County, a lesson which shows everyone that even with the interstate completed in New Jersey, there will be continuous bumper-to-bumper traffic on the superhighway on weekends.

Again, it is a penalty of progress.

The traffic congested Interstate 80 will no doubt double the air and noise pollution through the Stroudsburgs and the rest of Monroe County.

Despite these surface problems, which an urbanite takes for granted or doesn't even notice anymore, Monroe County will move even closer toward becoming a bedroom community for the greater metropolitan New York area.

We foresee that many persons who now have second homes in Monroe — or Pike — counties, will decide to live here year around and commute to their jobs.

A completed Interstate 80 through New Jersey makes this possible.

A commuter from here can reach the George Washington Bridge in 90 minutes (perhaps in even less time early in the morning). A 90 minute trip to work is not unusual at all. Millions do it daily in New York. A friend of ours commutes two hours from Long Island to Manhattan daily. Does he mind it? No, he says. Before he retired, a Dingmans Ferry man commuted two hours each day from his home to New York.

The biggest problem we envision by an overcrowded superhighway is that it would make Monroe County no different than any urban area as far as traffic is concerned. The accessibility of the Poconos, as we've seen this summer, is bringing tens of thousands of people here — by car.

What we suggest — both for the potential commuter and the tourist who intends to stay at a resort complex — is a step back to the railroad.

Many people are taking another hard look at the railway system and perhaps it would now be feasible to again have a passenger run from Monroe County to New York.

The railroads are still needed, actually more now than ever, as urban planners are pointing out, to provide a mass transit and take the cars off the road.

With a combined system of Interstate 80 and a passenger run — even if it's twice daily — Monroe County would have a better chance to retain its rural environment by cutting traffic on the highway and still be accessible to the millions from the megalopolis.

What Colson Told Ervin Staffers

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN
WASHINGTON — Former White House aide Charles Colson secretly told the Senate Watergate committee a tale that meshes closely with those of his ex - colleagues John Ehrlichman and H.R. Haldeman.

We have one of the closely guarded summaries of Colson's closed door interview with committee staffers in preparation for his testimony next month and have verified its authenticity with Colson.

In it, the brisk, buccaneer Colson sided with the White House Hans - and - Fritz team and painted a slippery picture of former presidential counsel John Dean. Nowhere did Colson deeply implicate himself or indicate that President Nixon knew of the Watergate coverup as Dean has charged.

Indeed, Colson charged Dean with his own coverup.

Colson asserted that he sent a memo to Dean outlining some incriminating evidence. "Dean came to (Colson) that day or the next day and told him to destroy (his copy of) it because it impeaches (Nixon campaign Deputy Jeb) Magruder," recorded the summary.

"He did not destroy it," the committee document goes on. Later, Colson told Haldeman and Ehrlichman about his talk with Dean.

The handsome Dean also ordered Watergate conspirator Howard Hunt out of the country after the Watergate break - in, according to a Hunt conversation with Colson's secretary. In the same conversation, Colson reported, Hunt said that "the big boy" — presumably former Attorney General John Mitchell — "demanded they go through with the (Watergate) operation." Mitchell has denied similar charges by others.

Missing from Colson's talk with the staffers is the brush tone that was his hallmark at the White House. To the contrary, there appear to be moments of contrition in his statement, some details of which already have been revealed.

"I approved two ads which were worked up and presented to me for approval and I possibly contributed something to the ads," he conceded. The two ads used names of persons without their permission to attack opponents of the White House Indochina policy.

At another point, he admitted that "Hunt came to me and said he had some hot information with regard to Chappaquiddick . . . and I told him to get it. It did not turn out to be anything significant."

"Hunt," he went on, "made only two trips at my request, one was for the Chappaquiddick papers and the other was to Denver to interview Dita Beard," whose famous memo tied a huge ITT antitrust settlement to a $400,000 GOP campaign offer by ITT.

'Chapman's reports'

Besides his activist role, Colson received "Chapman's reports," the memos sent to former Nixon aide Murray Chotiner from two of Chotiner's spies in the McGovern press party. "Colson has no knowledge of any other dirty tricks type activities," insists the summary of Colson's statements.

In fact, Colson denied vehemently a claim by Magruder that Colson pushed him to implement the Watergate bugging plan. "Colson called Magruder, who he did not think was doing a very effective job, and told him in no uncertain terms that he should give Hunt and (Watergate conspirator Gordon) Liddy his ear," the Colson summary admitted. But Colson has repeatedly denied he knew bugging was part of the plan.

When the Watergate scandal did break, claims Colson, he "had a meeting with campaign people wherein he strongly urged that those responsible should be cleaned out."

Footnote: In the confidential four - page summary, obtained by our reporter Ruth Jones, Colson is quoted as saying he thought he told Haldeman certain details of Dean's coverup efforts in January 1973. Colson told us this is inaccurate as well as other sections of the memo.

Uncle admits telling '73 Soapbox winner to cheat

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Robert Lange Sr. admitted Tuesday he told his nephew to cheat to win the 1973 National Soapbox Derby by building a magnetic device in the nose of his green racer.

"I determined that he should build and install a magnetic nose so as to be competitive with the professional cars he would be racing against," Lange said.

"I knew that this was a violation of the official derby rules and consider it now to be a serious mistake in judgment," he said.

James Gronen, 14, was disqualified by derby officials and forfeited a $7,500 scholarship for winning the race because of an electromagnet found in his car. The device, discovered by x-ray after the race, pushed Gronen's car away from the derby's metal starting gate.

Lange released his statement after talks with his attorney. He said the admission was his last word on the incident and that Gronen still was vacationing in Wisconsin.

Lange, president of the Lange Ski Boot Co., outside Boulder, a mountain college town of 75,000 persons, said the cars of the other top 10 finishers should be inspected for alterations that were against derby rules.

He denied pouring large sums of money into development of Gronen's racer and the car in which his son, Robert Lange Jr., won the national derby title in 1972. The Boulder district attorney had said the 1972 car cost between $10,000 and $20,000 to build.

Derby rules limit spending on development of racers to $40.

"It is foolish to suggest that any substantial expense went into either of them," Lange said, "except in the area of advice and counsel in the design and construction of the cars which is permitted under derby rules."

Lange said his nephew was not alone in tampering with his car in an effort to win the derby and said the event had become "tainted" with tampering not discovered "because of poor inspection and lack of supervision."

He said he wanted Gronen's car to be "competitive. Rule violations are common. The most frequently violated rule is tampering with or altering the axles and wheels which the derby supplies to each entrant."

In his five-page statement, Lange said his son's 1972 derby-winning racer was "clean. Neither a (magnetic) device nor anything similar to it was incorporated in or used in the winning car by my son, Bobby, in the 1972 race."

Lange said Gronen's magnetic device was installed prior to the city race in June but that it wasn't used. Boulder race officials have said they will not ask Gronen to return $100 in prize money until they talk to him.

"We want to hear Jim's side of the story," said Boulder derby chairman Jack Tracy.

Crop subsidies may end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Increases in grain and cotton prices may mean that the government will not have to pay crop subsidies in 1974, Department of Agriculture economists predicted Tuesday.

The government paid grain and cotton growers more than $30 billion in subsidies over the past 13 growing seasons. Payments during the current crop year are estimated at $2.3 billion.

Grover C. Chappel, head of a program analysis unit in the Agriculture Department's price support agency, predicted in an interview today that average market prices next year probably will top the target support price levels of $2.05 a bushel for wheat, $1.38 a bushel for corn, and 38 cents a pound for cotton.

A new farm law which takes effect on 1974 crops allows farmers to receive grain and cotton subsidy payments only if market prices fall below "target price" support levels set by law.

Several months ago, while Congress was considering the bill, administration experts had predicted 1974 payment costs at about $1.8 billion, even that figure would have been a sharp drop from subsidies of recent years. Chappel said booming market prices for wheat, feed grains and cotton in recent months have sharply improved the price outlook for 1974.

Soviet leader slaps down critics of policy with U.S.

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev has slapped down Krenlin critics of his policy of close cooperation with the United States who fear the Watergate affair will affect President Nixon's commitments to Moscow, Communist diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

The hard line critics have been arguing that Brezhnev has tied his policy too closely to Nixon and is running a considerable risk in the face of the uncertainty of the President's future standing and powers, the sources said.

Brezhnev has firmly opposed his opponents with the argument that the accords reached must be considered primarily as agreements with the United States, irrespective of who is the president.

Moreover, the critics have been given to understand that the Kremlin switch to closer cooperation with the United States is a necessity for the Soviet Union and its economic future, the sources indicated.

Communist diplomats are critical of the western publicity of the affair and suspect it as part of an alleged concerted allied strategy to undermine Nixon because of his switch to closer relations with the Soviet bloc.

There is little doubt, according to the diplomatic informants, that Brezhnev feels he has established a good personal relationship with Nixon and expects to be able to continue "doing business" with him.

But they argue, that according to the Communist book one deals with "whomever is in power." The line on which the Kremlin has embarked will prevail, but there might be hitches and delays, they said.

New cab service offered

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Radio Cab of Philadelphia Inc. announced Tuesday it has filed an application with the state Public Utility Commission (PUC) to provide the city's strike-bound taxi riders with a fleet of up to 750 new cabs.

"We can put a fleet of cabs on the street within six weeks," said Radio Cab President Joseph Leff, pointing out that the purpose of the application is to provide the city's taxi-riding public with "ever-improving service." He said the initial fleet would number 250 cabs.

Radio Cabs could start rolling, Leff said, if the PUC would issue temporary operating privileges, pending permanent approval of the application.

A strike by some 2,200 Yellow Cab Co. drivers and maintenance workers is in its 16th week here after the employees overwhelmingly rejected the financially troubled firm's latest contract offer last Saturday.

Court won't allow passenger train halt

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The U.S. 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals Tuesday overturned a lower court ruling which gave trustees of the bankrupt Central Railroad of New Jersey (CNJ) permission to terminate its money-draining passenger service.

The full court, in a 6-2 decision, ruled that U.S. District Judge Anthony T. Augelli did not have the power to cut off the service without prior approval of such a New Jersey agency as the Consumer Operating Agency (COA).

Augelli is overseeing reorganization of the CNJ under federal bankruptcy statutes. Under his ruling last December, passenger operations, including those in the northern New Jersey metropolitan area, were to shut down last June 30. Service continued, however, pending disposition of the appeal here.

The appeals court, in a majority opinion by Judge Arlin Adams, said the U.S. Supreme Court has "explicitly stated" that compliance with the state's regulatory program was required of railroads undergoing reorganization.

Attorneys for the CNJ trustees contended that passenger service was causing a loss of $10 million a year and if continued would amount to "confiscation" of the property of creditors.

The appeals court rejected the plea of the trustees that termination should be permitted to stop the financial drain on the line.

"The fact remains that the trustees have not sought relief from the appropriate agency," Adams wrote. "There having been no application made, there can be no showing that delay or frustration would be an inevitable result."

Mursch-Brown rites held in Mt. Pleasant

PLEASANT MOUNT — Miss Margaret M. Brown, daughter of Mrs. Edna T. Brown of Galilee was married to Frederick M. Mursch of Pleasant Mount R.D. 1, on May 27 at 11 a.m. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bridegroom in Pleasant Mount by Justice of the Peace Robert J. Prince.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Mursch of East Stroudsburg.

The bride wore a long-sleeved empire dress in street length with a flowered bodice and light blue skirt. She had a white orchid corsage.

Guests at the wedding included Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Mursch, Stanford Highhouse and Mrs. Ester Sutliff, both of Galilee.

A dinner reception was held at the Bethany Colony Restaurant where Mr. and Mrs. Prince joined them.

After a honeymoon in Quebec, Canada, the couple are at home at R.D. 1, Mount Pleasant.

The bride is a senior mathematics major at Susquehanna University, Selingsgrove. Her husband teaches instrumental music at Damascus Consolidated School in Damascus.

Reisenwitz at 75 feted by children

MOUNTAINHOME — Arthur Reisenwitz Sr. was the guest of honor at a party given by his children to celebrate his 75th birthday. The party was held at the Barrett Ambulance Building.

A painter all his life until he retired in 1972, Reisenwitz is married to the former Ruth Shaller with whom he celebrated their 55th anniversary. They have five children, 22 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. He raises houseplants as a hobby.

Bazaar Saturday

SWIFTWATER — The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Swiftwater Methodist Church is holding a bazaar and bake sale at the church hall on Saturday, Sept. 1, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. featuring a Christmas table and white elephants as well as refreshments of hot dogs and barbecues.

Slim wallet special

By BARBARA GIBBONS
When beef prices put you in a stew, that's exactly what to do. Make a stew! Unfortunately, even stew meat wears a steak price tag, so we'll just have to make the best of it!

Our idea of making the best of stew meat is turning it into a sensational Stroganoff, the dish that's usually made with steak, sour cream and mushrooms. Since we can't afford either the steak or the sour cream calories, we make it a special way with shinbone (beef shank) and skim milk soured with lemon juice. Of course if you happen to have sour milk on your hands, here's the perfect place to use it!

Pay special heed to our

Need dreams to rest well

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Sleep problems are one of the most common reasons for consulting a physician," says Dr. Joseph Fernaglich, a Georgetown University neurologist.

"In most cases, sleeping pills which are prescribed only worsen the problem," he said. Why? Sleeping pills inhibit dreaming — during which certain emotions and feelings are released.

"If we are deprived of our dreams, we wake up tense, nervous and unrested, even though we may have slept eight hours or more," Dr. Fernaglich explained. See?

Laurel Manor afternoon brightens week for elderly

STROUDSBURG — It's not a closed organization. As a matter of fact more of the 32 residents of Laurel Manor will be joining the group soon.

Nevertheless, as the reminiscences at the weekly party at the non-profit home for the elderly it was surprising to discover that five of the most lively residents were over 90 years old.

Laurel Manor was started by the Business and Professional Woman's Club as a community project. With the help of many other organizations and individuals they finally raised the funds to meet what was even then a pressing problem, a place where the aging, no longer able or willing to live alone, could have a home.

To make their lives a little brighter, an informal group of church women have taken the initiative in visiting Laurel Manor in pairs one day each week. They show pictures, play games, or just visit.

At the recent party, Mrs. Ernest Schultz played the piano for hymns and old songs which residents always enjoy. The committee welcomes any entertainment. Mrs. Margaret Loney is director of the home, located on West Main St., Stroudsburg.

Beach terror

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dennis Weaver and Estelle Parsons will star in "Terror On The Beach," a 90-minute drama for television's Movie of the Week for CBS.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

I don't think it is doing anything to help the gas shortage but I did hear of one woman who confessed that they spent yesterday taking a nice long ride. "Our house isn't air conditioned but our car is," she explained.

It was hot! So hot that some people even were glad they were working; at least they had air conditioning at work and maybe their apartment would cool down after dark.

Speaking of working, Vivian Vance certainly put in a full day on Monday, appearing in a play in California the night before and flying in — with three changes — in time for the opening of "Butterflies" at Mountainhome on Monday night. Almost pay to have your own wings!

Wings is what Sally Ferree needed the last ten days: arranging, writing the script and commenting for three fashion shows in two days, escorting the Shawnee Four-Ball ladies to Peddlers

Village the next, and opening her house for the house tour the next.

After that she and John started disassembling the house, getting ready for the move to their new home at Buck Hill on Sept. 4, and for the new owners of the Braeside Ave. house who move in on Sept. 5.

Incidentally, you might like to know that the new owners will be the vice president of the college, Dr. William Hein and his Margaret which should keep up the tone of the neighborhood.

As a matter of fact I'm getting a pretty nice new neighbor myself, although with the hours I keep about the only good I am is a friendly light for anybody who wakes up in the middle of the night.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Talk to anyone who has been sick for a while, and chances are pretty good that person is hooked on the "soaps." . . . Yes, soap operas are alive and well on daytime TV, and they offer an excellent way for a young actor to make a living . . . Such as Don Stewart who stars on "The Guiding Light," TV's longest running detergent drama . . . Don said if he wrote us a letter, it would go like this:

Dear Jack,
In the five years since I last wrote to you, I married and divorced a girl that turned out to be a really bad one. In fact she is trying to break up someone else's marriage now. Brother Ed as you know is an alcoholic, and he started drinking again long enough to get married to a very restless and impulsive child. I'd expect more from a great surgeon. Then, the other day, I finally married Ed's ex-wife which of course makes me both father and uncle to his son. I guess that means I could be called "Uncle-Daddy." I recuperated well after being shot in the heart. It turned out to be only a flesh wound. My law practice is extremely successful after I saved at least three people from the gas chamber or prison. My daughter ran away from home, but I found her in a blinding snow storm.

Your Friend, Don

"Would you believe that all these incidents related above happened to me?" Don asked us. "It's true — they did. That is, they happened to me on the television screen. They're all incidents that occurred in the last five years to Michael Bauer, attorney-at-law, in 'The Guiding Light.'"

"It is sometimes asked how can TV get away with such stories? The fact is they appear just as often in the news. In the words of Mary Stuart, a friend of mine who stars on 'Search for Tomorrow,' a redeeming factor about daytime TV is that the villain always pays for what he has done — and pays, and pays, and pays."

"Some men put down soap operas and they put down their wives for watching them. But after all, what really is the difference between watching soap operas all day or watching ball games all day? I don't want you to feel that I am trying to justify my existence as an actor on a daytime drama (as it is more respectfully referred to). It is a tremendous job for an actor, very highly sought after and coveted. It is steady, it offers an opportunity to work continuously at one's craft, and allows time to pursue other activities (more than half the actors on our show are doing or have recently finished Broadway jobs). Also, daytime drama is a fact of life and does afford an outlet for people who find it difficult to communicate, people in hospitals, older people, as well as housewives who are home with small children.

"One day I was entertaining on a program that also featured great actress Joan Crawford. I was supposed to introduce her on the show. I went over to her table to meet her, but before I could introduce myself she said, 'I know you. You're a very fine lawyer!'"

"A very close friend of mine was Ed Zimmerman, who played doctor on our show until he passed away last year. Ed had written a very good book about daytime dramas, 'Love in the Afternoon.' He also had appeared in numerous Broadway shows and had received a Tony nomination last year. I asked him one day why he worked so hard. His answer was: 'Daytime TV in itself does not lead anywhere.' I guess one can only assume that casting directors do not watch the same programs that their wives do.

"Let me conclude by saying I hope your days are less eventful than mine, but feel free to look in on my life anytime you'd like on CBS. Meanwhile, watch out, because I will be spending the afternoons with your wife."

Too young

KISS CLASH: (Q.) My stepfather almost killed me when he found out I French-kissed boys. What is so bad about that? Most of my friends are boys. When they call now he won't let them talk to me. I can't go on living this way.

13 in Indiana

(A.) I agree with your stepfather that at your age you should not be experimenting with French kissing. It excites boys (sometimes girls too) and is likely to lead to other-things you are not ready for. You do not say what your stepfather did, or whether your mother knows about all this. Talk to her in detail about all that happened, including both the kissing and the discipline. She needs to know.

(Q.) This is it. Marcia and I got to be good friends in school last year. At the end of school there was a picnic. I asked her to go with me. She said yes. We had fun like we had been going together forever.

We had a couple more dates and I asked her to be my girl friend. She said she would. We had some more dates and some more fun.

Last week I went to her house for dinner. I thought I did OK. But the next day Marcia's girl friend called and said Marcia wanted to break up with me. I asked to talk to Marcia and she told me it wasn't anybody else, and she liked me, but she didn't want to go out with me anymore. I still love her. What would you do?

Shocked in Pennsylvania

(A.) There is nothing for you to do except to face the fact that Marcia is no longer your girl friend.

Her decision may have been all hers, or it may have been influenced by her parents.

It may have been that — seeing you against the background of her home and family, Marcia suddenly saw that you were not the way she wanted to go. Or her action, even though it seemed sudden to you, may have been the result of weeks of thinking.

Continue to be a friend to Marcia. Maybe some day, when it won't hurt you so much as it would now, she will tell you the full story.

Or maybe some day she will change her mind and will again think yes instead of no about you.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)

Dynamic thought and action should be yours this day. Some of your ideas will be constructive, others not feasible. Choose well.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)

If you have a problem to solve, wait until early afternoon when influences will be better than in the a.m. You may have to revise your first ideas.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)

Some unusual developments in the making will affect you pleasantly. Especially favored now: travel, friendships, romance.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)

In both thought and action, be careful not to overstep bounds or underestimate your opponents. Observing these admonitions, you should have a dandy day.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)

Certain matters in which you are interested need extra push now. Get to them immediately. And, in all, stress forthright, accuracy, tact.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)

Take constructive action on a project now which you may have had in mind for some time. With good planning, you should be able to put it over now.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)

If you attempt to gain your way through unconventional methods, it could cause discord. Emphasize reason, logic, harmony.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)

Your outlook and approach tremendously important now. Day can be one of highly useful performance if you concentrate on immediate needs and forget past disappointments.

November 23 to December

(Sagittarius) — Admonitions for this day: Avoid haste in all things, especially in making decisions. Look closely at all situations. There may be values not seen at a cursory glance.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Step up activities to meet competition that is working overtime. The extra try will be worth the effort.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Streamline wherever it will accelerate progress, but don't by-pass those "little" details which can be so important. An average day, awaiting YOUR clever management.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Salute your day with the will to do your best even if all circumstances are not to your liking. You may profit more by working with others than on your own.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with great versatility, lofty and idealistic ambitions and remarkable intuition and sensitivity. You are competent and practical in all your undertakings, cautious and conservative. You enjoy the arts and find great happiness in the company of intellectually stimulating persons. Your thirst for knowledge is insatiable. On the minus side, you incline to be fault-finding, impatient with those less gifted than yourself and, at times, too prone to "give up" on a project before seeing it through to completion. Curbing these traits, however, there is no limit to the heights you can attain — especially in the fields of law, literature, music, statesmanship, medicine or education.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.

A top-notch declarer takes every possibility into consideration. Delicate refinements of play do occasionally arise, and the mark of a fine declarer is that he manages to apply them effectively to the task at hand.

West led a club, won by the ace, and declarer finessed the queen of spades, on which West played the nine. When declarer continued with the jack, East covered with the king. South winning with the ace as West showed out.

South still had the 10-7-3 over East's 8-6 and, in order to avoid a trump loser, he returned to dummy with a low diamond to the jack in order to lead the four of trumps. When East covered with the six, South finessed the seven and drew East's last trump with the ten.

Declarer would now have been on Easy Street had he found the diamonds divided 3-2, but when he led the ace East showed out and West's remaining 10-7 prevented him from running the suit.

South was therefore obliged to overtake the queen with the king in order to lead a heart from dummy. However, West showed up with the A-Q and South went down one.

But he should have made the hand. After the trump situation became exposed, he should have realized he was subject to a 4-1 diamond break and taken steps to guard against that possibility.

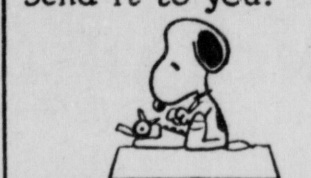

Instead of leading the six of diamonds to the jack, he should have led the queen to the king. Then, after drawing trumps, he could play the ace and another diamond, taking the proven finesse and finishing with eleven tricks instead of nine.

The queen is played to the king not to display an abundance of resources, nor for histrionic effect, but to cover the specific possibility of West's having four diamonds to the ten.

Ugly duckling story

NOT Confidential To All Readers: The poem, "Pardon Me, Doctor, But May I Die" was sent by an anonymous reader who imagined he was the author. The real author subsequently identified himself. He is Mr. R.B. Richards of Palos Verdes Estates, California. The poem was inspired by years as a volunteer at Harbor General Hospital in Torrance, California. We are happy to give full credit to Mr. Richards for a piece of superb writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to say a word to "Born Loser" because I, too, was the ugly duckling in our family. My older sister inherited all the looks and personality. No one could believe we were related.

My mother didn't bother much with me. I was plain-looking and overweight, so there was no use wasting time on a girl who was such a mess. My father wanted a boy and I was supposed to be it. When I wasn't, he got even by ignoring me.

It was my wonderful eighth-grade teacher who gave me a sense of personal worth. She encouraged me to study hard and gain recognition through achievement and kindness to others. I won a scholarship, lost weight and began to feel like somebody. In my last year of college I married a wonderful young man. We have a beautiful family and a good life.

Things didn't go too well for my sister. She married a handsome, lazy skirt-chaser and they have been separated three times. The years of unhappiness show. She has gotten heavy and developed some physical problems because of her weight.

I hope you will print this letter so "Born Loser" will know it's a terrible mistake to count herself out because she got off to a bad start. She can come from behind and win if she has the will to do it.

Dear Secretariat: Thanks for the word from the feedback. Beautiful! Just Beautiful!

Dear Ann Landers: A person I used to work with — and who now is retired — told me he had attended six wakes and 17 funerals in the past two months. "The food is usually delicious," he said.

When I remarked that I thought it was a pity so many of his friends and relatives had passed away he said, "The departed weren't friends or relatives. Some of them were strangers. I go to wakes and funerals because there's nothing on TV worth looking at and the movies these days are so dirty."

Is this man a sadist or is he just plain bonkers?

The Ghoul Pool

Dear G.P.: I'd say he is more free-loader than sadist. I don't get the impression there is any emotional involvement whatever. He's just looking for free food and a little company.

I Did

to say a word to "Mrs. Square America" who is plagued by unwanted obscene mail.

As a postal clerk I can tell her the best way to put an end to it. She should go to the Post Office and ask for the form which, when filled out and signed, puts her on the list of persons who do not wish to receive mail she has not requested. This list is available to all mailers. It then becomes ILLEGAL for them to send such mail to her. I did it myself and all that scummy literature has stopped coming to our home.

And now, Ann, since one good turn deserves another, will you allow me to sneak in a word that will help all postal employees everywhere? Please, folks, write the names and addresses so we can read them. And don't forget the Zip codes.

Thanks, Ann. You have my stamp of approval. (Ha ha.)

Marion, Ohio, P.O. Pal

Dear Pal: You're welcome. And a ho ho to you, Dad.

Obituaries

Ex-DWG postmaster dies at 80

EAST STROUDSBURG — Joseph T. Hauser, 80, of Delaware Water Gap, died Tuesday morning in the General Hospital of Monroe County. He was a former postmaster in Delaware Water Gap.

Born in Delaware Water Gap where he lived all of his life, he was the son of the late Millard Fillmore and Elnora (McEwing) Hauser.

A veteran of World War I, he served with the U.S. Army. He was a member and former elder of the Presbyterian Church of the Mountain, Delaware Water Gap.

A mason for over 50 years, he was a member of Barger Lodge 325, F. & A.M., Stroudsburg, and a member and past official of the Lehigh Valley Coin Club and the Monroe County Coin Club.

He is survived by a daughter, Miss Dorothy Hauser, at home, and a grandson, Joseph Rattman, at home.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday in the Richard J. Klotach funeral home, Stroudsburg, with Rev. William F. Wunder officiating.

Viewing will be after 7 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home. Barger Lodge 325, F. & A.M., will conduct memorial services at 8 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home.

Burial will be in Delaware Water Gap Cemetery. Expressions of sympathy may be sent in the form of memorial contributions to the Monroe County Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Familiar roads hazard to drivers

STROUDSBURG — Roads near home and driving after dark require extra caution over the Labor Day weekend, according to the AAA.

Allan C. Hunsinger, manager of the AAA Motor Club of Northeastern Pennsylvania, said that statistics indicate that accidents occur more frequently on roads within a 25-mile radius of the motorist's home.

This is attributed to over-familiarity on the part of the driver who tends to drop his guard behind the wheel. The AAA spokesman also noted that the hours of darkness also see the greatest number of accidents, partially due to driver fatigue, reduced visibility, and in some cases, drinking.

Hunsinger said his organization is again joining with the 39 other AAA Clubs in Pennsylvania in urging motorists to "bring 'em back alive!" over the holiday weekend.

The AAA spokesman suggests avoiding marathon driving, resting every 100 miles on a long trip and getting an early start home at the end of the holiday to avoid last-minute highway congestion.

He also says drivers have a better chance to "bring 'em back alive!" if they slow down in bad weather, be constantly alert to the movements of other vehicles, and keep their cars at a pace suitable to road conditions and traffic.

Hunsinger added that the news media will be at work over the holiday weekend.

Rec area schedules activities

COLUMBIA, N.J. — Final summer weekend activities at the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area on Friday and Saturday will consist of a variety of daytime and evening programs at Hidden Lake and Worthington State Forest.

Hidden Lake Campfire Circle will host a program entitled "An Artist Looks at Nature" or landscapes on canvas at 8:45 p.m. Friday.

Also at Hidden Lake, located off Rte. 209 between Marshalls Creek and Bushkill, will be an outdoors skills program for youngsters.

These skill programs, presented daily at 10 a.m., will include activities such as boating, fishing, and swimming.

The landscapes on canvas presentation will be repeated at 8:45 p.m. Saturday at Worthington State Forest Campfire Circle, located on Old Mine Road in New Jersey.

Artists for Environment, a non-profit foundation in cooperation with the National Park Service, will present the last in the series of Water Gap concerts at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the Watergate Recreation Site, one half mile south of Millbrook, N.J.

Computer jobs open with state

HARRISBURG — Computer programmers and trainees are needed throughout Pennsylvania to fill state civil service positions which offer starting salaries ranging from $6,787 to $9,545.

Richard Rosenberry, State Civil Service Commission executive director, said at present there are a few positions available in Harrisburg and at state colleges throughout the state.

Applications will be accepted until further notice and examinations will be scheduled periodically at 14 statewide test centers.

The employment lists resulting from these examinations will be used to fill current and future vacancies.

Applicants for computer trainee must be high school graduates with at least 200 hours of formal electronic data processing training.

Those applying for computer programmer I must be high school graduates with one year of experience in electronic computer programming and a minimum of 100 hours of formal computer training.

Candidates for computer programmer II must have an additional year of experience in computer programming.

Applications and further information may be obtained from State Civil Service Commission offices in Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia, or from local offices of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service.

Benefit air show on tap

LONG POND — Plans have been completed for a benefit air show which will be presented at the Pocono International Raceway, Long Pond, at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 23.

Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties Mental Health Associations are co-sponsoring the benefit in cooperation with Pennsylvania Mental Health, Inc.

In addition, 10 per cent of the proceeds will go to the General Hospital of Monroe County and the Burnley Workshop of the Poconos.

Other proceeds from the air show will be used to continue the Mental Health Association's programs of education, research and social action.

More than 35,000 spectators can be accommodated in the grandstand at the raceway.

The site also presents a unique opportunity for airplane enthusiasts to view the take-off and landings, aerial performances of a variety of stunt planes, helicopters and parachutists.

Tickets for the air show will be available in more than 100 outlets in communities and resorts.

Tickets can also be obtained by contacting Howard Atwell of the psychology department at East Stroudsburg State College.

Frank Germain and Rev. James J. Doyle, C.S.C.,

presidents of the Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties Mental Health Associations, are heading the drive for what will be the first of a series of annual air shows.

Woman injured critically

Mrs. Louisa Renn, Kunkletown R.D. 1, was reported in critical condition Tuesday at the Allentown General Hospital after the car in which she was a passenger struck a tree on Rte. 715 between Tannersville and Henryville.

Two teenaged occupants were treated at the General Hospital of Monroe County and released. The driver, Mrs. Renn's son, Earl, was not injured. (Staff photo by Steve Drachler)

Met-Ed prepares Portland site

Nuke plant paper readied

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

PORTLAND — Within a decade, a nuclear power plant may grace the skyline of the Delaware River in Portland.

Metropolitan Edison Co. has submitted a preliminary report to the federal Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) for a nuclear plant which would supply 1,200 megawatts of electricity to Pennsylvania — three times the capacity of the present Portland generating station.

A formal application for a construction permit should be in AEC's hands by late 1973 or early 1974, according to Robert Arnold, generation manager from Met-Ed's Reading office.

Arnold anticipates a plant built by 1983, depending on the progress of the multitude of approvals the company must secure for the plant.

The Portland plant will complete a trio of nuclear plants planned to meet Met-Ed's generating needs during the next 15 years. Two nuclear stations are under construction now in Three Mile Island, south of Harrisburg. A fourth site in Hamburg is also under study for future use.

Met-Ed has been "proving" the Portland site for two years, according to Arnold. That is, teams of experts have been studying the geology of the site, the environmental impact of a plant and the general lay of the land for construction purposes. The resulting siting study is now with AEC and local officials, it is available to the public.

A variety of scientific data must be submitted to AEC before the company can embark on its construction plans.

Chief concern
A chief concern of AEC is the ability of the proposed plant to withstand any earthquake which might hit the area.

"AEC looks at the area and puts it in an earthquake zone," Arnold explained. "They then tell us how we must build the plant in accordance with the earthquake history and quake probability of the area."

Earthquake-proofing technology for almost any area, Arnold said, is available. In fact, he said, nuclear plants — safe ones, that is — are being built near the San Andreas fault in California.

The AEC regulates construction of any station before and after it is completed. Commission personnel study the plant design, spot check the construction process, and inspect the plant when finished. The power company must ask AEC for an operating license once the plant is completed.

At any step along the way, AEC can cite the company for infractions of regulations. Separately from the construction application, Met-Ed must prepare an environmental impact report for AEC.

The power company must also contend with a governmental Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards (ACRS), which provides a double check on AEC supervision.

In the case of a Portland plant, Met-Ed must also deal with the Delaware River Basin Commission (DRBC) which regulates water users of the Delaware.

However, because Met-Ed is a utility company, it does not have to seek any local permission for plant construction.

After the plant is built, Arnold said, Met-Ed runs a multitude of radiation monitoring programs. The company tests several levels of the food chain — plant life, cow's milk, river algae — to discover whether there is a radiation build-up.

And, despite claims from a frightened public of damage to the environment from nuclear reactors, Arnold asserted, "There has never been demonstrated any effect on the environment due to the operation of a commercial reactor."

Arnold pointed out that a nuclear plant, by law, can let no more than five millirems (a minute radiation measurement) of radiation escape yearly from the plant.

However, Arnold explained, approximately 100 millirems of radiation a year are given off in nature — through cosmic rays, radioactive gases, contaminants.

Leakage from the plant is prevented by a safeguard system that immediately stops generation when a leak is detected. A leak in a nuclear plant, Arnold said, is exactly that — water carrying nuclear heat burst through a pipe.

Nuclear power plant fight expected by area residents

MT. BETHEL — Residents of Upper Mt. Bethel Township are organizing against a proposed Metropolitan Edison nuclear power plant, now in the planning stages.

Approximately 25 persons form the nucleus of the group which has held primarily educational meetings since July.

Principally, the group is concerned with what they consider the dangerous effects a nuclear reactor might have in their area.

They claim that nuclear power remains a largely untested source of energy and that the populace cannot be insured against any accidental leakage of radiation or major failure of the generating system which they say could be disastrous for persons living near the plant.

"Nuclear power is still an experimental science," said resident Peter Cohon, a vocal force behind the group. "No one can insure that an accident won't happen."

Nuclear radiation, Cohon continued, is the most "poisonous substance to man. We need to be 100 per cent sure of its safety, not 99.9 per cent."

Larry Ryman, professor of biology at East Stroudsburg State College, is titular head of the group.

He contends that the people of Mt. Bethel are being treated as "second class citizens. Met-Ed is only putting the plant here because it is a sparsely populated area and few people will be directly affected by it."

Ryman and township supervisor Victor Melnick both testified before the Pennsylvania State Insurance Department hearings on nuclear energy Aug. 14.

At the hearings, consumer advocate Ralph Nader backed opponents of nuclear power with testimony that the country was heading for "technological suicide" because of haphazard construction of nuclear plants.

The Mt. Bethel group has taken much of Nader's evidence to back their protest. They cite studies showing that the presence of a nuclear plant in an area leads to an increase of incidences of leukemia and birth defects.

They also claim that protection against any violent accident is not provided for with radioactive materials.

"What happens in case of a hijacking of nuclear materials, for example?" Cohon questioned.

"Remember," he added, "The power people have a vested interest in selling nuclear power. It's like a vacuum cleaner salesman telling you his vacuum cleaner is the best."

Pocono resort owners face pool license crackdown

By JOHN L. MOORE
Harrisburg Bureau
Harrisburg News Service

HARRISBURG — State environmental officials plan a test case against one of 50 Pocono resort owners breaking state law by operating unlicensed swimming pools.

While there are "probably about 50 (resort owners) that we know of" who float state law by operating swimming pools without obtaining permits from the state Department of Environmental Resources, officials took the first step in making the test in early August when they ordered the owners of three resorts to close and drain their unlicensed pools, according to George Fetchko, an environmental protection specialist at the DER regional office in Kingston.

Fetchko said while officials at Kingston have decided to let the owner of the Arlington Hotel in Kingston continue to break the law because he was "unaware" of the law requiring the permit, the owners of the other resorts may find themselves in court if they defied the order.

Fetchko said he didn't know if John Hickey, owner of Hickey's Sunset Farms in Pike County's Shohola Township or Frank G. Cannon, owner of the Can-Quill Motel in Monroe County's Middle Smithfield Township, complied with the close-and-drawn orders sent out two weeks ago — but said either Hickey or Cannon are candidates for the test case if they ignored the order.

"According to the book, they're operating illegally," Fetchko said and added officials "hope" other Pocono resorts will take notice if DER takes either Cannon or Hickey into court.

Most of the 50 unlicensed pools in the 10-county area served by the Kingston office are in Monroe, Pike and Wayne Counties, he said.

Arlington Hotel, Sunset Farms and Can-Quill were selected as targets because of "past violation history," but DER officials will go easy on James J. Maun, the Arlington owner, because he is a "new owner and wasn't aware" of the regulation.

Fetchko said Maun has promised to obtain a permit.

The law has been on the books for some time, but DER people have been lax in enforcing it, according to Fetchko who depicted the department as "becoming enforcement-oriented."

Violation of the law constitutes a misdemeanor, he said.

General Hospital funding drive reaches $1.6 million

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Expansion '73 fund-raising campaign for the General Hospital of Monroe County has reached $1,650,000 in contributions.

The new total, announced to the hospital board of directors Monday, is $350,000 over the fund-raising goal of $1.3 million.

Contributions will pay for more than half of the planned $3 million Jordan Primary Care Wing at the hospital.

The project will go to bid in April, 1974, the '73 expansion building committee told the board.

Groundbreaking for the new addition should take place in May.

In other action, the board approved a number of organizational changes designed to streamline board operations.

Two vice-presidents will share with board president

Roger Dunning the duty of acting as a non-voting member on board committees.

Samuel Newman will represent the president on finance, personnel, nominating, by-laws and mental health committees.

Lin Patterson will serve in the same capacity on the joint conference, planning and development, buildings and grounds, public relations and fund raising, housekeeping and food and the '73 expansion committees.

A vice-chairman will also be appointed to each committee to help the committee chairman with his responsibilities.

Several committees have also been re-formed.

The real estate committee has been dissolved until it is needed for future transactions.

The finance committee has assumed the duties of the pension committee while the ad hoc planning and development committee has been renamed the '73 expansion committee.

A special legislative committee, headed by Mrs. Seldon Ponder, was formed to investigate federal and state legislation which affects the hospital and the delivery of health care to the community. The committee will report monthly.

Charles Swisher, hospital administrator, and Dr. Sherwood L. Samet, chief of staff, will be advisors to Mrs. Ponder.

The board acknowledged a donation for the hospital from the estate of Sue Ruster, Stroudsburg, for $25,000. The money was marked for the building and equipment fund.

The board accepted the resignation of Franklin Smith with regret. Smith is moving to Florida.

Pedestrian park . . .

Will be ready soon in the triangle between South Washington and Brown Streets in East Stroudsburg. The park will house the model bridge between the boroughs and a monument from The American Legion.

Bridge entrance to E-burg to be dressed in new look

EAST STROUDSBURG — A new look is coming to the triangle of land between South Washington and Brown Streets.

The grass covered area will be the new home soon of the monument from the demolished George N. Kemp Post 346, the Legion, building on South Washington and the replica of the bridge between the boroughs used as a float in the 1970 East Stroudsburg Centennial Parade.

The land is part of a state highway right-of-way, which means approval for the project has to come from the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT).

Approval has already been granted the American Legion for their monument, according to East Stroudsburg Borough Manager Donald Gage, with the application for the bridge placement and other modifications submitted to PennDOT for approval.

Gage said local PennDOT head William Heller was working to expedite speedy approval.

The monument being placed this week was moved there from in front of the Legion building a hundred yards away. The building was sold and the land will be the new location of a hardware store.

The monument commemorates those who have served their country in times of war.

The bridge between the boroughs was built for the 1970 centennial celebration by the Brothers of the Brush, who later donated the scale model to the borough.

The original bridge was washed away during the 1955 flood, Gage said, with the model being 28 feet long, about seven feet wide and five feet high.

Besides the two commemorative structures, benches and plantings will be set in place, to make a pedestrian park.

"The setting will enhance the entrance to town," Gage said, "and will be an attractive little stopping off place."

"We just decided to do something about it," said Councilman Charles Merring. "John Barnes (First Ward Councilman) kept mentioning the bridge every six or eight months so I just decided we should do something."

Merring said council soon found out the Legion was seeking approval from the state for locating their monument on the site so the two groups worked together on the park plans. Also contributing toward the spot will be the Monroe County Garden Club, Gage said.

Driver not hurt in car crash

CANADENSIS — A car driven by a New Jersey man ended up overturned after the driver lost control on Snow Hill Road in Price Township Monday afternoon.

William W. Crouse Jr., of Great Meadows, N. J., escaped without injury. He was headed west on the road. State police from Stroudsburg said there was about $500 damage to the auto.

Pocono Manor's owner dies at 72

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Samuel W. Ireland, 72, owner of Pocono Manor Inn and Golf Club and the Ireland Coffee Co., died Monday at Atlantic City Hospital, Atlantic City, N.J. He was the husband of Beatrice Ireland.

Born in Pleasantville, N.J., he was a lifetime resident of the area.

He started the wholesale coffee business in 1920 and has served the hotel and restaurant trade in the Delaware Valley since then.

He bought the Pocono Manor Inn in January, 1967. Since then, he had spent several million dollars to renovate the building.

The inn is now a 350-room hotel with two 18-hole golf courses.

He attended the Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania. During World War I, he served with the United States Marine Corps.

He was a past master of

Trinity Lodge 79 Free and Accepted Masons, Excelsior, 3 Consistory, a member of Crescent Temple of the Shrine, a member of the Rotary Club of Atlantic City, a member of Seaview Country Club and a member of Union League, Philadelphia.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Lon Jourdet, Ventnor, N.J.; two sons, James M., Ventnor, N.J., and Samuel W. III, Margate, N.J.; one brother, Raymond, Margate, N.J.; three grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Ventnor Community Church, Victory and Ventnor Avenues, Ventnor, N.J.

Burial will be in the Greenwood Cemetery, Pleasantville, N.J.

There will be no viewing. Funeral arrangements are being handled by the Plum Funeral Home, Ventnor Heights, N.J.

Aaron moves to within 8 of Ruth with 706th homer

ATLANTA (UPI) — Rico Carty, a former Braves star, returned in triumph to Atlanta Stadium Tuesday night by driving in four runs as the Chicago Cubs beat Atlanta 9-6 despite Hank Aaron's 706th lifetime homer.

Aaron's homer in the first inning for Atlanta, a towering drive over the 375-foot mark in left field, knocked in three runs.

Carty, returning to Atlanta for the first time since he was traded by the Braves last winter, hit a two-run homer in the first and drove in two more runs in the fifth with a two-out bases loaded single. The homer was his first since joining the Cubs from the Texas Rangers.

Ralph Garr opened Atlanta's first with a homer and after the next two batters reached base, Aaron slugged his 33rd homer of the season.

Chicago scored three times in the eighth when Ron Santo walked, Jose Cardenal singled and Paul Popovich singled to drive in Santo. After a sacrifice, pinch-hitter Jim Hickman hit a sacrifice fly and Don Kessinger drove in a run with a single.

Mounties fail to reach Ross' goal

Fred Ross is a demanding football coach. He sets goals for himself and his team and expects to follow through. And after one scrimmage, the Stroudsburg High School coach is honest. He's a little disappointed.

The Mounties scrimmaged Chief Logan of Lewistown last Saturday in preparation for their Sept. 7 opener against Bangor.

"I'm not that pleased," Ross was saying between sessions of daylong practices. "I'm the type of guy who sets high goals and hopes to live up to them."

"We just didn't do that great. We didn't look lousy, either. We're coming along. Some things looked good. Others didn't. We threw the ball well. Our quarterbacks are coming along."

Ross used Pete Ryckman as the primary quarterback in the scrimmage. Joe Cariola and Steve Chura also saw action in that spot. But Ryckman was a "standout" at quarterback, Ross said.

"We had some trouble with the back to line coordination," the Mounties' coach continued. "We moved the ball, but not well enough. We want to have an offensive team this year. One which can put points up on the board."

"But in order for us to do that we'll just have to move the ball better."

Ross said the Mounties' defense "didn't do bad inside." But he added "we didn't do that well on the corners." He said Greg Veney did "a heck of a job" in the defensive secondary.

Ross found a lot of bright spots, such as the punting. "Jim Owens looked real well as a punter," Ross continued. "He got the ball up real high and it was easy to cover. I like that."

Ron Reddicks and Frank Bell, both youngsters who saw considerable experience last year, are expected to carry much of the running load this year.

"They looked fair Saturday," Ross said. "Those two, along with Veney, haven't fully developed their potential yet. When they do they'll be outstanding."

The offensive line, which has been one of Stroudsburg's assets in the past, had no "real standouts," according to Ross.

"But for the amount of experience they have, they didn't do that badly," he pointed out. "Ed Blair looked good in there."

Stroudsburg will get one more test — against Wilson Saturday — before its first game.

Nitschke to quit football but 'still has the desire'

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Ray Nitschke, a man who came up in the 50s, starred in the 60s, and faded in the 70s, retired from professional football Tuesday with an emotion-filled voice proclaiming he "still had the desire" to play.

Nitschke, who was voted the best middle linebacker in the first 50 years of the National Football League, met reporters at a news conference that Dan Devine, head coach and general manager, didn't attend. Devine sent a statement that said the news conference "belongs to Ray" and that was true.

"The spirit is still there, but the numbers game got to me," Nitschke said. "There's no room on the roster for a third middle linebacker."

"Even though I have known the day would come when I'd have to make this announcement, it never really is an easy one to do," he said. "You can never really prepare yourself for it, but I'm going to retire. After 15 years and another summer camp, I'm going to hang up No. 66 for the last time."

Nitschke's retirement saved the Packers the embarrassment of having to cut the 15-year veteran. He had become a third stringer, played very little during four preseason games and it was obvious to everyone he didn't fit into Devine's plans.

Several members of the Packers had said that Nitschke ought to retire before the Packers had a chance to cut him. That's just what he did.

Nitschke's success came when the Packers enjoyed their greatest success, during the early and middle 60s. He helped the team win the first two Super Bowl games and then crowned his career with his selection as the best middle linebacker in the first 50 years.

Tuesday he announced an end to sitting on the bench.

"The only regret I have is that I can't turn the clock back to 1958 so I could start again," he said.

Favorite lacking in Hambo

DU QUOIN, Ill. (UPI) — Sixteen of the nation's classiest three-year-old trotters are primed for Wednesday's 48th renewal of the richest Hambletonian in history with the prospective winner still very much in doubt.

The field of 11 colts, three geldings and two fillies will go to the post at 2:10 p.m. CDT in the first heat. A one-hour rest will be allowed between heats and the first horse to win two heats will win the stake.

If the issue is not settled after three heats, the three winners will come back in a fourth heat raceoff. That has not happened since 1965 when Egyptian Candor was the surprise winner.

The entries for the non-betting races, headed by Knightly Way, the unofficial 9-5 favorite, and 2-1 second choice Arnie Almahurst, will race for a total purse of $144,710.

The winner's share will be $72,355; second, $36,177; third, $17,362; fourth, $11,576; and fifth, $7,235.

None of the entries is regarded as a real threat to the Hambletonian record of 1:56 2-5 established a year ago by Super Bowl. Many observers feel the field will produce a time within the 1:57 to 1:58 range.

Knightly way has won the most money of any entry—$200,231—and Arnie Almahurst has the best time—2:00.

Riggins leaves training camp

By United Press International
HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Fullback John Riggins, unable to agree with the New York Jets on a new contract, walked out of training camp Tuesday and said he was going home.

"The way I see it now, I don't think I'll be back," he said. A two-year veteran from Kansas, he was demanding $120,000 after being selected by his teammates as the Jets' most valuable player last year. He had held out for five and one-half weeks before reporting to practice last week. He didn't play in Saturday's game against St. Louis.

Bills in trade

BUFFALO — The Buffalo Bills traded veteran offensive guard Irv Goode to the Miami Dolphins for defensive tackle Mike Kadish. Goode was obtained from St. Louis last year, but a preseason knee injury prevented him from playing with the Bills last year. Kadish, from Notre Dame, was the Dolphins' top draft choice in 1972 and spent last year on the taxi squad.

Five Steelers cut

Pittsburgh — The Pittsburgh Steelers placed four players on waivers and one on the injured reserve list.

Guard Bracy Bonham of North Carolina State was the only drafted player put on waivers. The others were running back Enos Hicks of McNeese (La.) State, offensive tackle Younger Klippert of Stanford and defensive back George Haynes of Tulsa.

Wide receiver Stahle Vincent of Rice was placed on the injured reserve list.

Starter missing

SANTA ROSA, Calif. — Mike Siani, starting wide receiver for the Oakland Raiders, was missing from the club's training camp, reportedly demanding a pay raise.

Siani, a first round draft pick last year, had been in camp up to last weekend, but failed to report back to camp Monday.

'Obvious' Saints' coach had to go

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Owner John Mecom Jr. of the New Orleans Saints said Tuesday Coach J.D. Roberts never deserved the criticism he received but was fired reluctantly because he didn't produce a winner.

Mecom replaced Roberts with John North, the club's offensive coordinator.

"It was obvious (Roberts had to go) whether it was my thinking or not," Mecom said, citing the Saints' 31-6 exhibition loss to New England last week.

"The things that fire coaches are losing seasons. You have to win. If we put on a good show, play good football, the fans will be tolerant. If we can win our share some damn way, we'll be all right," said Mecom.

North, an assistant coach of the Detroit Lions for eight years before coming to New Orleans this year, was not to be considered an interim coach, according to Mecom.

Under Roberts, who took over midway through the 1970 season, the Saints compiled a 7-25-3 mark in two and a half years. They were 0-4 in exhibitions this year.

Roberts loaded his personal belongings and mementoes into his car at the Saints training camp Tuesday, chomping an unlit cigar while he worked, and said, "I have no comment."

Reportedly, Roberts had two years to run on a $40,000-a-year contract.

"I am shocked. I'm tickled to death to have the opportunity. I'm elated, tickled to death to have the job," North said.

Mecom asked Saints' fans to "give him (North) a chance. Let's start on a positive note."

But assistant coaches Jim Champion and Jim Royer announced their resignations after Roberts was fired.

In announcing Roberts' firing, Mecom said he regretted it, because, "certainly no one in pro football has ever worked harder than coach Roberts did in changing the complete structure of our football team."

"His task might have been an impossible one, but his efforts have never slackened, as he turned to young players to build a winner," Mecom said. "I'm quite sure that his contributions to the Saints' progress on the field will be realized in time by even his most severe critics."

The Saints organization had been uneasy most of the summer while Mecom negotiated with a Chicago combine to sell the franchise. But three weeks ago, Mecom announced the sale was off because of renewed "confidence and pride" in the team after close losses, 12-6 to Kansas City, and 14-13 to the Miami Dolphins, in preseason.

But what looked like a promising, gutsy young Saints team started to come apart in a boring 24-14 loss to the Dallas Cowboys two weeks ago and the 31-6 embarrassment against the Patriots in the home preseason opener. Roberts was roundly booed by the hometown crowd when he ran out on the field at the start.

North, 52, was an assistant coach with the Lions from 1965 until 1972. He played end at Vanderbilt in 1942 and in 1946 and 1947. As a pro football player, he was an end with the Baltimore Colts in 1948-50. He coached at Tennessee Tech in 1954 and 1955, Kentucky in 1956-61, and Louisiana State, 1962-64.

Mrs. King cleared to play in U.S. Open net tourney

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — The International Lawn Tennis Federation, anxious not to disrupt the U.S. Open championship, cleared the way Tuesday for Billie Jean King to defend her women's singles title.

Mrs. King, former titleholder John Newcombe of Australia, and Federation Cup captain Linda Tuero will be investigated by the ILTF during the 12-day tournament, which begins its run Wednesday, following the disclosure they had signed contracts with World Team Tennis, an organization which does not have ILTF sanction.

Frenchman Bob Abdesselam, a member of the ILTF's committee of management and one of four men on the emergency suspension commission, said: "The ILTF wishes to be fair to the USLTA, the tournament organizers, WTT and the players."

"It would not be just for us to suspend any players until we have conducted an investigation and seen a copy of the contracts. As a practicing lawyer, I feel this is most important."

With that the way was cleared for the three players, and any others who have signed WTT contracts, to play in the Open which ranks as the world's premier tournament this season both in terms of money — $227,200 is up for grabs — and the quality of the entries.

WTT plans a three-month circuit next year with 16 cities. Matches will involve men's and women's singles and a mixed doubles. Play is scheduled to begin in May which would mean serious disruption of the European circuit and part of the U.S. summer-fall calendar, also making it difficult for males to compete in the Davis Cup.

Abdesselam, who was asked by ILTF president Alan Heyman of Denmark to fly over from Paris to clarify the situation, said the ILTF is against WTT for several reasons, but mainly because it feels the concept is wrong.

"The signing of contracts is contrary to the 1972 peace formula worked out between the ILTF and the contract professionals, and the scoring system, which permits the switching of players in mid-match, is against the rules," he said.

Abdesselam dwelled at length about the disruption of the tournament schedule and 'the Davis Cup in particular.

"WTT says it will release players to represent their country in Cup competition. But I ask you, how can a man who is playing in Baltimore or Los Angeles possibly be fit to play in Europe the following day after a transatlantic flight? What if the weather delays a match beyond its scheduled three days as has often been the case?"

Both singles titles here will be worth $25,000, the first time in history the women have played for a similar prize as the men.

Romania's Ilie Nastase, the defending champion, is seeded to meet Stan Smith in the

Tigers sign Bangor youth

BANGOR — Bryce Onjack, a graduate of Bangor High School, has been signed to a professional baseball contract by the Detroit Tigers.

The former Slaters captain will report to the Tigers' minor league complex next spring.

Onjack hit .365 in high school. Through his play he played in Baltimore on the team which represented the city in the Johnsontown tournament.

He received a baseball scholarship to the University of Wyoming, where he hit .406 last year. This summer he played for Martins Creek in the Blue Mountain League. He hit .385 and was named to the league's all-star team.

Organic foods feed sweet tooth

GILBERT — Looking for a way to consume sweets without picking up all the sugar content? Go organic.

An organic food stand, co-sponsored by Omega Foods in Delaware Water Gap and the Tallahatchie Herb Farm in Gilbert, has a wide variety of treats without any preservatives, additives, or other chemical agents.

Among the stand's organic offerings are honey-lime candies, granola bars (a candy bar substitute), honey-wheat germ cookies, and dried fruit.

A spokesman for Omega Foods, who declined to identify himself, noted eating organic foods is not the panacea to good health.

"Health foods is really a general or illegitimate term," he said. "A balanced diet is the secret to good health."

The purpose of the organic food stand is to "turn people on to the fact this food exists," he added.

The organically-minded fairgoer can learn, for example, the 15 cent granola bar contains honey as its sweetener and carob instead of chocolate.

Organic corn munchies, comparable to the corn chips found in grocery stores, and dried peaches, pears, and figs are some of the other featured treats.

Tallahatchie Herb Farm's contribution to the stand is a number of medicinal herbs.

While the stand operators don't recommend laymen to practice herbal medicine on themselves, they claim the herbs can be beneficial in curing a number of ailments.

Slippery elm, for example, is an aid to sore throats. A red sage tea is helpful in cooling a high fever, while mint and mullein teas are good remedies for colds, said the food stand spokesman.

He noted the opening day fairgoers have been "pretty open minded" concerning the acceptability of organic foods.

The organic food concerns are careful in checking to assure their products are pure organic material and don't hesitate to drop a questionable line.

"There's an increasing amount of fraud by disreputable companies," the Omega spokesman said.

A complex certification program, conducted by Rodale Press of Emmaus, is continually involved in checking out organic food dealers.

Surveys are done by the firm through both soil and laboratory tests to assure no trace of chemical fertilizers is present in the organically grown food.

With pure organic food, Omega Foods and Tallahatchie Herb Farm "try to give people nutrition at a reasonable cost."

So next time Junior cries out for a candy bar, quiet him down with a granola bar, and feel confident you're now a member of the food movement.

Pony show scheduled for today

GILBERT — A demonstration race, featuring ponies pulling sulky carts, will be one of the highlights of today's open pony show at the West End horse arena.

The show, scheduled to begin at 6 p.m., will feature the same types of competition as the afternoon's English exhibition, as well as several special categories.

One of these classes is the lead line competition for children under seven years of age. The ponies are judged on the basis of physical characteristics, build, and walking mannerisms while an adult leads the child's animal.

Walt Smith, horse show chairman, pointed out the lead line competition is the first step of competitive horsemanship for children.

"It's quite a thrill for the winners when they receive their ribbons," he remarked.

The demonstration race, which is an open class, will feature the ponies racing around the horse arena course while pulling carts, similar to harness horses.

The ponies, which are a unique breed of horses, all stand under 14.2 hands in measurement. The West End Fair Association is sponsoring the open pony show.

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. — Jocelyn Clark, 58 Broad St., Stroudsburg has been named to the dean's list at Eisenhower College, the Vice President for Academic Affairs announced this week. She earned the honors during the spring term.

Lemon stick — stick it in your kisser and pucker up

GILBERT — Three enterprising Tannersville men are getting West End Fairgoers to squeeze and pucker up.

Their new concession isn't any type of kissing booth, but an innovation known as the lemon stick.

The three men, Bob and Steve Jakubowitz and Kirk Young, picked up the lemon stick idea from a flea market in Philadelphia and quickly put it to use in several local fairs.

A small hole is bored in a cold lemon and a porous candy stick is inserted as a straw. The thirsty customer squeezes (like the Burger King whopper, it requires two hands) and sucks the tangy juice through the candy.

From first-hand experience, it can be said it's best to let the candy stick deteriorate a few minutes before sucking the juice. Otherwise the lemon juice is apt to squirt down your arm.

The trio once experimented with oranges, but found people are more willing to try a lemon stick because they hadn't tasted such a treat before.

At the Lehigh Valley Fair, Steve Jakubowitz offered to refund the 35 cent price of a lemon stick to anyone who purchased one and found an extreme dislike.

Only one person took him up on the offer. "He said he didn't like the taste of lemons," Jakubowitz remarked.

Sales have been fairly heavy the first day of the fair and the stand is equipped with cases of lemons from Pocono Produce and about 100 pounds of candy lemon sticks.

Plans are also underway for a lemon stick festival to be held at the Tannersville Inn.

But throughout fair week, the three men will be content to see plenty of squeezing and puckering people.

'Fun' machines usurp tractors' place at West End Fair

By JOE DeVIVO
Pocono Record Reporter
GILBERT — Farm machinery, move over! The commercial vehicle section at the West End Fair, once the sole domain of tractors, plows, and other farm equipment, is now interspersed with snowmobiles, dune buggies, and canoes.

This summer's gasoline shortage may be one reason more fairgoers could be persuaded to purchase one of Ken Esrang's non-motorized canoes.

Esrang, who operates Ken-Mar Acres in Kresgeville, has a number of canoes and kayaks on display at the fair. The canoes are made of a rugged vinyl sandwich foam, designed to propel the canoeist safely through "white" water.

Even an emotional outburst by a frustrated owner will not damage these canoes, which are built to withstand the force of hammer blows.

For those who must have color along with the excitement of canoeing, Esrang has on display a psychedelic canoe covered with fiberglass. The fiberglass bodies are interchangeable over a Volkswagen chassis and allow the owner to switch bodies to fit his particular whim.

Miller's business features 10 different style bodies, which are manufactured in Massachusetts. Three-wheel tri-sports vehicles capable of speeds up to 90 miles per hour are the feature of Borger's Gulf Service, Kresgeville.

While these vehicles are not permitted on the open road, area clubs have been formed to race the three-wheel speedsters across trails or open land.

Less powerful models, capable of speeds of only 15 to 20 miles per hour, are also available. The tri-sports vehicle serves a dual role, since skis can be attached to the front for winter time fun.

The traditional farmer interested in the latest equipment still has plenty to keep his visit to the commercial vehicle section entertaining, such as the group of International Harvester machines.

One relatively new machine is an air planter designed for corn. The machine works on "positive placement", shooting the seed into the ground rather than dropping it as in traditional planting methods through the use of air pressure tubes.

Another mechanical feature is a heavy duty back-hoe loader. This 100 horsepower machine is designed for digging sewer lines or trenches and can complete a job with a lot less effort than a pick and shovel.

Whatever your vehicle interest, you can probably find it at the West End Fair.

Mrs. John Diebert examines Christmas trees on display at fair

Christmas in August?

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter
GILBERT — We've heard of Christmas in July — but Christmas in August?

Visitors at the West End Fair this week may even begin to think it is December when they come upon the new Christmas tree category located just outside the flower house on the midway.

More than 15 different Christmas trees in addition to various green wreaths have been mounted to snow fence poles at the fairgrounds.

Kenneth Esrang, Warren Mervine and John Deibert all exhibited trees this year. Charlie Shupp entered the first wreaths at the fair.

The various types of trees on display include Austrian Pine, Balsam Fir, Concolor Fir, Douglas Fir, Red Pine, Scotch Pine, Blue Spruce, Norway Spruce, White Spruce, White Pine, and Fraser Fir.

Only the Hemlock category did not have an entry, but according to Deibert, a professional tree grower, the Hemlock is not really a Christmas tree, anyway, because "it drops its needles overnight."

Deibert entered the only balsam tree, a light feathery tree, in the fair. According to the grower, the balsam is the original Christmas tree and takes about 15 years to mature. Deibert is the only grower in the county to raise the unique variety.

According to the tree exhibitors, most pines take nine years to mature, whereas spruces and firs take 20 years to reach their true quality.

The Christmas tree category was added to the fair this year, at the suggestion of Mervine, who is a wholesale grower from Effort.

It was Mervine who exhibited the concolor white fir, perhaps the most beautiful and fancy tree on exhibit.

Containing a soft needle that doesn't drop readily, the concolor is also known as the California Silver Spruce Tree.

When the twig of the concolor, which is expected to be named grand champion of the division, is crushed, it emits a fragrance like oranges.

"I'm happy with the display we have," said Deibert. "I hope more people will become interested in exhibiting trees next year."

The trees, in order to be exhibited at the fair have to be between five to seven feet tall, trees are not allowed to be exhibited that are sprayed with artificial color or that have limbs or foliage that did not grow naturally.
